THE statement that a Treaty has recently United States providing for the abolition of Consular -jurisdiction in the former country received a good deal of credence. Whether it is absolutely true or not we have no ovi dence before us to show, but on the face of it the statement is not improbable. Treat revision cannot be much longer delayed, and the United States may have desired it advisable to hasten it on by breaking away from the co-operative policy and making a Treaty of their own independently of what the other powers may do. In 1878 a trenty was signed between the United States and Japan by which the former agreed to recognise the exclusive power and right of the Japanese Government to adjust the Customs tariff and taxes and to establish Regulations apportaining to foreign commerce in the open ports of Japan; while Japan on her part agreed, " in view of the concessions made by the United States," to open two additional ports to citizens and vessels of the United States for the purpose of residence and trade. It was, however, stipulated that the convention should not come into effect until Japan should have concluded similar as its express provisions are concerned, butit has probably not been without effect in helping on the movement for a general that there is no cause for alarm. and more radical revision of the existing treaties with European powers. Possibly include a similar stipulation for the postponement of its execution until the other powers have been brought into line, but in any case it signalises an important concesson to the demands of Japan. Looking at it from a selfish point of view; foreigners are naturally anxious to see the whole country opened to their enterprise and it is unquestionable that a large expansion of trade would follow this step almost immediately. The reluctance they feel placing themselves under the jurisdiction of Japanese Courts, if it has not wholly disin China, Japan &c., with New Table of Fees appeared, is rapidly melting away under the adoption by Japan of those principles of law and judicature which are regarded by the peoples of Western or intries as the safeguard of their rights and liberties. Even the most ardent champion of Japanese claims. however, cannot contend that the surrender of extraterritoriality has been too long delayed. However willing foreigners might be to exchange consular jurisdiction for native laws, provided these were clearly defined

MILITARY FIELD DAY.

The Military had a Field Day on Friday last. The whole of the Gaps now having been attacked in succession, on other field days, on this occasion a free hand was given to the Attack to come at any or all of the Gaps between Mount Storer on the East and Victoria Gop on the West. The long line of the defence was commanded by Col. Forbes Robertson, with 3 Companies and 4 Gans. The Attack, consisting of 4 Companies Chater, was supposed to land at any point between Deep Water and Sandy Bays. There for as to lend him one of his steam launches to were signallers on every available peak and hill convey him to his ancestral home, which is about to keep the defence on the sleet, but nothing attackers was noticed approaching Magazine Gap from Aberdeen. These became later on hotly engaged, but proved to be only one Comtention of the force stationed to hold Magazine Gap. In the meantime signals came from the left that some of the emeny were advancing up Middle Gap. The signallers failed to send any accurate account of the numbers, and the two sections at Middle Gap, helped by one gun, found themselves opposed to nearly the whole strength of the attack, who were, as rapidly as the nature of the ground permitted, push ing on up Middle Gap. Every now and then they were seen and heavily fired on from a gun and from the few Infantry. But numbers ing to the Umpires) of half their namber, and in thirty minutes from starting, they gained the top of Middle Gap. The Company at Victoria Gap were all this time held in check by a few of the enemy. who were sent to Pokinium to represent the head of an advanced guard. The attack certainly seemed to have secured Middle Gap before reforce landed at night, or in a fog, it would be difficult to get as far as Little Hongkong with out being seen, if a proper look out was kept.

The following news was received at Singapore on the 8th inst. by wire from Manila pe H.M.S. Supphire from Labuan and is confirmed by latters also received the same day from Borneo direct :- The correct state of matters is as here given. Pangeran Shabander has signed a treaty before Governor Hamilton, countersigned by Governor Creagh, British North Borneo. He agrees by way of reparation to surrender all his territory for the sum of $1.800 per annum together with $300, poll-tax money agreed to be paid to him by Governor Treacher two years ago. The above information is taken from the letters of Governor Creagh and Mr. D. D. Daly, Resident West Coast, to hand on the 8th inst. The carious nature of the relations existing between Sarawak and North Borneo are indicated by the invitation given by the Hajah of Sarawak to the Pangeran to take up his abode within territory at Muara. This will in part account for the strange version of the conclusion of peace which came through Sara-A friend writes to us (Free Press) -- The Boyalist brought 41 Sikhs back from Labuan (Borneo) who were not any longer required as the war is over. The Captain of the Royalist states that Shabander gets $1,800 a year for his possessions; he is going to live at Muara, in the territory of the Rajah of Sarawak, who is build-
